

Unit 2 Critical thinking Emi Slater

Saturday, September 14, 2024 9:09 PM

Hello Patron,

I've recently completed my apprenticeship in our beautiful city of Firenze and I believe my services would be in line with your interests. I've seen you employ others to create art based around human beauty, although in the older styles, and I think a humanistic portrayal would be to your liking.

With oil painting, I could depict your beautiful loved ones (your wife and daughters perhaps) in a similar style that would harken to the allure of Aphrodite herself. In a few short sessions where they would pose for me, I could properly portray their beauty! Then to capture their vibrant hues, I'd use the technique "glazing". This will bring to life their full beauty. And to your liking, any scene would be complimented greatly. By the ocean or the forest, any would be perfect.

We could even have them in a scene practicing your renowned generosity, giving donations to towns folk or satyrs of the forest. With your wife in the central focus, contrapposto, gazing onto those approaching her seeking help. A single hand raised fingers relaxed to indicate they are welcome to approach. She would be robed in a vibrant blue, her lovely red hair braided to the side. Your daughter, robed in green, red hair down to show her youth, smiling gently. She would be walking towards her mother, carrying vibrant tools of cloth and other riches. This would display your wealth (in multiple ways) and your beautiful family. All would be realistically proportioned to their real life counter parts, but your wife set a tad higher than the rest to denote her importance in the community.

The piece would be 2- dimensional, and displayed in your home (if that is your preference). It would be a most intimate art work for your visitors to admire.

If you would like to commission me to make this for you, it would have my full attention to its completion.

Yours,

Apprentice